

Story Writing

DATE: 19/11/25
PAGE: 36

A story must have:-

- Characters - people or animal in the story
- Setting - where and when the story happens
- Plot - the main events
- Problem - something goes wrong
- Solution - how the problem is solved

Tips for Story Writing

- Use simple and clear language
- Add dialogue to make the story interesting
- Describe feeling and actions
- End the story with a clear conclusion
- You may add a moral, but, it is not necessary

A) The Brave Princess and the Magician

Evergreen
Page No. ~~33~~ 37
Date: / / 20

Princess Tara was known across the land for her courage and her skill with the sword. She was soon to marry Prince Aryan, a kind and handsome prince. But one evening, a wicked magician named Zoran kidnapped Aryan and took him to a dark forest. He wanted the prince's bravery for his own magic.

When Tara heard the news, she did not cry. Instead, she picked up her sword and rode into the forest. The trees were tall and frightening, but she did not stop. Soon she reached Zoran's cave. The magician laughed and said, "You cannot fight my magic!"

Tara replied, "Your magic is strong, but my courage is stronger." She dodged his spells and used her sword to break his staff. Without his staff, Zoran lost all his powers. Tara quickly freed Aryan.

The prince smiled and said, "I knew you would come."

They returned to the palace, where everyone celebrated their bravery.

B) The ~~Poor~~ man and the Grain

Evergreen
Page No. 38
Date: / /

Raghu was a very poor ~~man~~ ^{man} who begged on the streets for food. Most days, he hardly got enough to eat. One cold morning, as he was sitting near the market, an older beggar came to him. The man looked even poorer than Raghu. His clothes were torn and he was shivering.

He held out his hand and said, "Brother, do you have a handful of grain for me? I have eaten for two days."

Raghu felt sad. He only had one small bag of grain that someone had given him. It ~~was~~ was all he had for the day. For a moment, he thought, "Should I share? What will I eat?" But then he looked at the man's weak face and opened the bag.

He gave him half and said, "Take ~~this~~ this. It is not much, but it will help."

The beggar blessed him and walked away. Later that day, a kind merchant saw Raghu sharing his food. Impressed by his kindness, the merchant offered Raghu a small job in his shop. From that day on, Raghu never needed to beg again.

Moral - Kindness always returns to us.

C) The Wedding of the Sun and the Moon

Long ago, people believed that the sun and the Moon were magical beings. After many years, the sun fell in love with the Moon. Their light made the sky beautiful, so everyone in the heavens agreed that they should get married.

On the day of their wedding, the sky was decorated with shining stars. The Sun wore bright golden robes and the Moon wore a silver gown that sparkled softly. When they stood together, their light filled the world.

But soon there was a problem. The Sun was too bright, and his shine covered the Moon completely. The moon felt sad and whispered, "People cannot see me beside 'you'."

The Sun understood and said, "Let us make a plan. Sometimes we will meet and sometimes we will stay apart so that everyone can enjoy both our light."

Really Nice
The ball
21/22/25
So during their wedding, when the Moon came in front of the sun for a short moment, his light got blocked. The sky turned dark for a little while.

People looked up and said, "This is the first solar eclipse!"

And from the days the Sun and the Moon meet only something, creating an eclipse in the sky.